Executive Summary

Overall exports of US Hardwood products are down on the year in comparison to 2014, but some markets are showing growth. The largest export market, China, is importing significantly less US hardwood lumber so far this year (-12%), and Vietnam, a market that has shown considerable growth recently, is down 11% in lumber this year. This graph shows the top individual markets in 2014 and the current gain or loss in value by percentage so far this year. As this chart shows, Spain and Thailand have grown considerably - 49% and 24% respectively. Overall exports of US hardwood lumber are down 9% this year in comparison to 2014 totals, but it is important to note that the US is still on pace to export just over $2 billion of lumber for our second highest export total ever.

Fig. 1 – Key Market Change in Value

Fig. 2 Jan-Jun Export Totals 2009-2015

The US hardwood export market is experiencing an adjustment period but is still in a strong position globally. Figure 2 shows the midyear export totals for US Hardwood Lumber since 2009. The current total for 2015 is marked in green. As you can see, in these markets the yearly total, though down, is still an improvement on 2013 - and in many cases is still the second highest Jan-Jun total ever.

The detailed stats in the following report are provided to members of the American Hardwood Export Council and a yearly report will be published at the beginning of 2016 when the data comes available. The American Hardwood Export Council (AHEC) is the leading international trade association for the U.S. hardwood industry, representing the committed exporters among U.S. hardwood companies and all major U.S. hardwood product trade associations. AHEC's member companies service the growing global demand for U.S. hardwoods and represent the full range of hardwood products. AHEC maintains offices in Japan, Europe, Southeast Asia, China, Korea, and Mexico, in addition to its Washington, D.C. headquarters to serve the needs of the global community.

This information was provided to AHEC members in August of 2015, for additional information please contact AHEC at tpryor@ahec.org, by phone at (703) 435-2900, or consult our web site at www.ahec.org and www.americanhardwood.org.
